

PUZZLE FOR THE SENATE.

Who Is Entitled to the Committee Rooms?

MAY RESORT TO PHYSICAL FORCE.

Government May Have to Build, Equip, and Furnish Private Residences for Each Senator—Committee in Charge of the Matter Has Not Sufficient Power.

The Senate convened yesterday for the last time until the holiday recess has ended, and adjourned over until January 6.

Little business was transacted on the last day, as many of the members of the upper body left the city for their homes, and little interest was manifested in the proceedings.

The House also adjourned after enacting one piece of legislation, the Philippine Tariff bill.

Congress has been in session just seventeen days, and the Senate succeeded in enacting one piece of legislation, the Hay-Paunaguet Treaty.

When the lawmakers reconvene on January 6 both the Senate and the House, according to the program, will proceed to the consideration of a canal construction bill, Mr. Morgan being the father of one in the Senate and Mr. Hepburn of one in the House of Representatives.

The Committee Room Puzzle.

Little or no committee work has been mapped out to be done during the recess beyond the preliminary work of preparing some of the advance annual appropriation bills. A very serious problem, however, confronts the Senate, and a few of the older and presumably wiser heads have been left on guard to study out a plan for solving it.

This is the committee room puzzle, which has become acute and more bothersome than the famous "fifteen puzzle" or the "picks in clover," that worried the heads of the American people a few years ago. The committee room puzzle is, however, serious, and the members are absolutely at a loss for a plan that will solve it so that they may live together in peace and harmony.

Committee Lacks Power.

The Senate has a committee on rules, but it possesses no such autocratic power as belongs to the like committee in the House of Representatives, whose word is law and whose members are themselves the creatures of the Speaker. The Senate Committee on Rules suggests orders, and recommends, but the Senate pays no more attention to the committee than to those of any other committee of the body, and that in some cases is very little.

The attempt of various Senators to preempt the Senate certain desirable committee rooms as soon as it was learned by the expression of various Senatorial terms March 4 last what chairmanships would be vacant, by anticipating the provisions of the committee chairmanships, grew into such a rampant affair that the Committee on Rules ordered that it should be held that the committee rooms belong to the committees and not to the Senators who might happen to be chairmen of them.

Meaning of the Order.

The effect of this order was to say that Senator Platt of New York, for instance, the Chairman of the Committee on Printing, should retain the desirable room that he picked out last year, instead of having to give it up to a new chairman who had been squeezed out of his own room.

The order meant that Senator Cullom should vacate the room of the Committee on Interstate Commerce as soon as it was given to the new chairman, Mr. McKim, instead of keeping it himself, on account of its size and accessibility.

The order meant, in fact, that every committee room should belong to the committee the name of which is painted over the door, and as it interfered with the convenience and comfort of Senators they simply paid no attention to it.

The Senators who picked out the committee rooms thought they were entitled to under a liberal construction of the old rules and standing guard over them and are snapping their fingers at the Committee on Rules. It looks now as if it would be necessary to resort to physical force to get matters into a smooth running order again.

Best Case of Trouble.

The cause of all this trouble about committee rooms is that every Senator now feels that he must have two committee rooms—one for the transaction of public business and one adjoining in which to receive his personal friends and transact his private affairs.

The present room of the Committee on Foreign Relations is a beautiful one which was originally and expensively decorated about two years ago under the direction of the then chairman, Senator Davis. But the room is now a beautiful one which was originally and expensively decorated about two years ago under the direction of the then chairman, Senator Davis.

All the Comforts of Home.

The Senators now have every facility for agreeing transacting the public business provided at Government expense, in addition to many personal comforts, including free baths and barbers, telephone, medicines in emergency cases, lemonade in the summer, public and private secretaries, the free delivery of mail several times a day at their residences, and many like adjuncts to an easy life, but each must have two committee rooms or they will not be happy.

It is thought that the time is coming when a proposition will be seriously made to build in the neighborhood of the Capitol grounds twice as many fine private residences as there are Senators in the United States, and give one to each Senator, completely furnished, and fully equipped with servants free of expense. It is thought that the time is coming when a proposition will be seriously made to build in the neighborhood of the Capitol grounds twice as many fine private residences as there are Senators in the United States, and give one to each Senator, completely furnished, and fully equipped with servants free of expense.

Eight-Hour Bill to Come Up.

The House Committee on Labor will take up the eight-hour bill immediately after the holiday recess, a meeting of the committee having been called for January 9.

Judge McCann, representing the Steel Trust and the Grange, and Judge E. Payson, representative of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company and the Southern Pacific, have already asked to be heard on the subject, and a date for the hearings will be set at the meeting in January.

Another Volapuk Effort.

Representative Cushman introduced a resolution yesterday to organize an international conference for the formulation of a universal language, the conference to plan the details of the work.

REFURNISHING OF THE HOUSE.

Commission Reports Upon Improvements in Chamber.

Representative Cannon submitted to the House yesterday a report of the commission having charge of refurnishing the House of Representatives.

The report at considerable length reviews what has been done for the improvement of the House in ventilation, refurnishing, refitting the floor room, and other improvements.

The report continues:

"The last complete refurnishing of the hall of the House occurred in 1873, when the Senate chamber was refurnished. The last and previous Congresses were installed. The membership of the House then numbered 365, including Delegates, and the desks, without label frames, desks, and inkstands, cost $21.75 each. Prior to that expenditure and incident to the first occupation of the new south wing of the Capitol by the House of Representatives, appropriations were made, from 1856 to 1858, for furnishing the hall, committee rooms, and offices, aggregating $20,000. The membership of the House, including Delegates, then numbered 244. The desks and chairs provided on that occasion were of oak, elaborately hand-carved.

Continued increase in the population of the country proportionate to that which has marked the last decade and the same ratable apportionment of representation as is now fixed by law will, after the next census, require a material enlargement of the present hall by the removal of its south wall and gallery so as to embrace the lobby area within its floor area, unless the use of desks for members be abandoned.

"Indeed, the limits of the hall, as contemplated by the design of half century ago and as actually constructed, will have been reached, if not exceeded, with the coming of the Fifty-eighth Congress. The forty-fourth session of the House, the Senate, have all been filled, and every foot of available floor space will be required to accommodate the desks and chairs of the 250 Members and Delegates who will compose the next House of Representatives."

One of the commission's recommendations is that there shall be excluded at all times from the hall of the House of Representatives and the cloak room all persons not entitled to the privilege of the floor during the session, except that until fifteen minutes of the hour of the meeting of the House persons employed in its service, and members of the press entitled to admission to the press gallery, and other persons on request of members, by word or in writing, may be admitted.

NOMINATED BY THE PRESIDENT

Names of New Officeholders Sent to the Senate.

The President yesterday forwarded the following nominations to the Senate:

Smith, of New York, to be pension agent at Toledo; Fred W. Daniels, of Wyoming, to be register of the land office at Buffalo, Wyo.; Eugene B. Maiber, of Wyoming, to be receiver of public moneys at Buffalo, Wyo.

MANY BILLS IN SENATE.

Mr. Hanna Introduces One Providing Pension for Mrs. McKimley.

In the Senate yesterday Senator McCann introduced a bill to amend the corporation of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Washington.

He also introduced a bill to extend Fifth Street in Takoma Park.

It recites the fact that several persons have been killed or injured at the grade crossing in Takoma Park; that many children have to cross the tracks there, and that a safe bridge-grade crossing should be provided.

It is proposed to open Fifth Street from Blair Road to Magnolia Avenue. The sum of $17,000 is appropriated for the purpose.

Senator McCann offered a bill regulating the use of electricity for heat, light, and power in the District of Columbia.

Senator McCann presented a bill to preserve the corporate rights of the German Orphan Asylum, of the District of Columbia.

Senator Mitchell presented a bill providing a standard of wages for women in the Government Department.

Senator Platt of New York has introduced a bill to relieve the property owners from the assessment laid for benefits for the extension of Rhode Island Avenue, New Hampshire Avenue, Sherman Avenue, and Eleventh Street northwest.

Senator Hanna appeared in his seat for the first time in more than a week. He was surrounded by a number of Republicans and related his recent experiences in New York. He presented a huge bundle of bills during the morning session, including one to pension Mrs. McKimley. This is the same bill introduced in the House by Representative Taylor.

A resolution was received from the city council of Salt Lake City, Utah, demanding swift legislation against anarchy and anarchists and regretting the death of President McKinley.

At 12-10, on motion of Senator Hale, the Senate went into executive session to consider nominations. At 1 o'clock the doors were opened and the Senate, on motion of Mr. Allison, adjourned to meet on January 6.

FOR TEMPORARY COPYISTS.

House Makes an Appropriation of $10,000 for the Force.

In the House yesterday, upon motion of Mr. Cannon, a joint resolution was passed appropriating $10,000 for the temporary force of copyists employed by the General Land Office.

Mr. Mann at first objected to the proposition, but when told by Mr. Cannon that several of the copyists employed were widows, he said: "On the grounds of mercy, I withdraw my objection."

Representative Cannon reported from the commission appointed to supervise the work of refurnishing and refitting the hall of the House and other portions of the Capitol under the jurisdiction of the House a statement of its work showing an expenditure of $124,660.

A message from the President recommending the establishment of a forest reserve in the South Appalachian Mountain range was read. It was referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

District Committee Did Not Meet.

The House District Committee did not meet yesterday, although it was the regular meeting day of the session. There are about twenty-eight bills now pending before the committee. They will be taken up for consideration immediately after the holiday recess. The next meeting of the committee will be January 9.

MANY FALLS AND MANY LAUGHS.

INCIDENTS OF REAL WINTER DAY.

Comical Mishaps Mark the Progress of Man and Beast—Ants Cheerfully Defiant of Snow and Cold—Touch of Old Boreas.

The advance agents of the North King's winter storm arrived yesterday morning and covered the city with their posters in white.

As a result of their labors Washington was a nocturnal in grey skies and white earth all day long, until the sunset died, when the clouds skurried southward and their curtains of pearl arose on blue gardens of stars, shining with all the brilliancy of a December night.

As evening came on the rawness of the afternoon softened the wind to the lamb who were being shorn as Christmas shoppers.

Many Shooting Stars.

Beautiful as was the landscape in the meadows of the gods, "was rather a dangerous experiment admiring them, for the pavements were like unto the proverbial ice in slipperiness, and to rubber-soled at the sky too often meant a loss of both dignity and gravity."

A young woman on F Street, in a Burgundy colored raglan, trying to point out to a friend the "bored-looking" escort, slipped on her feet and fell. After making a frantic effort to find support in the vacuum air, fell in a dizzying heap of white lingerie, as the man grabbed for her a moment's rest.

Similar mishaps were current all through the shopping district, evoking plenty of laughter, which is coined the most during this season of holiday cheer.

It was the horse who really suffered from such conditions, for he could not pick himself up with a laugh and hurry on, but had to depend upon human aid. He was brutally given, but in the majority of cases the drivers were patient with their much enduring beasts.

Difficult Pedestrianism.

Travel was tough enough on Belgian blocks, but on asphalted streets it was almost suspended, for the snow had melted slightly and then frozen into a skin, that brought to grief without care horse and blooded Hambletonian alike.

Standing on the west plaza of the Capitol yesterday afternoon and looking toward the Ionic facade of the Treasury, the white stretch of avenue was blurred from First to Fifteenth Street with little groups surrounding some horse who had taken a tumble, and it required the agility of an equine Blonfin to walk a block without slipping.

Almost a Horse Carnival.

At the day went on and the condition of the streets grew worse, the horses presented a most ludicrous appearance in the bandages swathing their legs and feet to aid them in making headway, jute bagging, frayed carpets, and cast-off garments of all descriptions were impressed into the good cause.

One ducky had his mule's legs, fore and aft, tied up in old breeches, and as the animal walked along in safety, his long ears wagging sagaciously, the driver was saved by more than one "lemons" on the box of a crested carriage, handling the ribbons over the backs of thoroughbreds that could not stand on their aristocratic hoofs.

Horseless Defiance.

If ever there was an occasion demonstrating the superiority of the automobile as a carrier it was yesterday, for when teams made a snail's pace the "choppers" sailed by on roughened tires, apparently oblivious to weather conditions.

On Fourteenth Street, where it follows a hill from the Avenue to F Street, two express wagons, surmounted by colored drivers and going in opposite directions, were stalled during the "frozen" condition of the road.

"Ize or feeded I can't go down," said one of them.

"En I can't go up," returned the other, as the automobile of a big department store shot up the hill with such ease as ever Jacob's angels mounted the golden ladder.

"Gentlemen," whistled the first ducky when his horse puffed shot in his face, "dat's de fring. Dey's done not de niggers free and now dey's er wine t' free de bosses."

JAMES M. BALDWIN DEAD.

War Veteran and Well-Known Resident Passes Away.

James M. Baldwin, for many years a well-known watchman at the Treasury Department, died near Fredericksburg, Va., on Wednesday.

Mr. Baldwin was born in Ashland County, Ohio, June 29, 1825. In his youth he moved with his parents to Clinton Junction, Rock County, Wis. In 1861 he enlisted in the Fourth Battery, Wisconsin Light Artillery, and rose to the rank of quartermaster sergeant. During his service in the Union Army he met Miss Jane Tabb, daughter of the late Capt. William Tabb, who was one of Spottsylvania County's well-known citizens, and a marriage at the close of hostilities was the culmination of an army courtship.

Mr. Baldwin was appointed to a position in the Treasury Department about 1865, and was at his post nearly every day until he resigned on November 1 last, on account of illness. He had many friends in Washington, especially in the Treasury Department.

He and four children, Mrs. Charles O. Doten, James Baldwin, and Charles E. Baldwin, of this city, and Mrs. Lauman W. Bowling, of Spottsylvania County, Va., were members of Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, F. A. A. M., the United Veterans Legion, and the Grand Army.

The funeral will be held at Lee's chapel, 322 Pennsylvania Avenue northwest, tomorrow, at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be at Arlington National Cemetery.

GOLD KING MUST PAY.

Joseph Covey Wins in Suit Against Frank Phiscolor.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Dec. 19.—Frank Phiscolor, the "Klondike Gold King," must pay $7,500 to Joseph Covey in accordance with a verdict returned in the suit of the latter growing out of his alleged false imprisonment in the Yukon region.

Covey charged Phiscolor with alienating the affections of Mrs. Covey. He secured $9,000 from Phiscolor and then followed the latter to the Klondike, where he demanded $12,000 more.

Covey was put in jail and forfeited $1,500 in gold dust to secure his release. His suit was to recover this sum.

Will Organize After Holidays.

The House Committee on Postoffice and Post Roads will not be organized until after the holiday recess. One of the first bills the committee will take up for consideration is the Smith penny postage measure, which was introduced in the House on the second day of the session.

DE ARMOND STIRS THE HOUSE.

Vigorous Attack Upon Rural Free Delivery Appointments.

Rising to a question of personal privilege, Representative DeArmond occupied the time of the House for more than an hour yesterday in explaining that he had not sought to hold up the matter of rural free delivery in certain parts of the Philippines during his absence in the Philippines. He stated that the report had been circulated that he had asked to have the matter held in abeyance while he was away.

Representatives Payne and Grosvenor raised a point of order that the matter was not one of personal privilege, that whatever the Missouriian had done before the Postoffice Department was not done in his capacity as a Representative in Congress, and that therefore he could not explain under the rule relating to personal privilege.

This led to a long colloquy between Mr. DeArmond, Representative Payne, and Grosvenor, which resulted in the Speaker deciding against Mr. DeArmond. The latter, however, finally secured unanimous consent to state his position. He denied the report, and the discussion finally drifted into politics and the appointment of Republicans as against Democrats under the civil service.

He charged that the appointments to the rural free delivery in his State were being dictated by the "big Republican boss" of that State, who wanted to come to the Senate. He referred to National Commissioner Kerens.

Several Republicans interrupted to defend the appointments made under the civil service in the rural free delivery, and Mr. DeArmond finally withdrew his explanation the House adjourned.

ESCAPE OF THE DISCOVERY.

Holes Found in the Bottom of the Exploding Vessel.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—According to a despatch from Lyttelton, New Zealand, the steamer Discovery, conveying the British Antarctic expedition, narrowly escaped disaster on her voyage here.

On the passage out she developed a leak and put into Cape Town, but decided to come here for repairs. Upon her arrival here she was docked. It was found that there was a bored hole, one and one-quarter inches in diameter, through her elm and oak frame, which was only filled with wood borer.

It was also found that berings for bolts holding the steel ice plates had pierced through the sheathing and planking, instead of going into the ice. Thus, if ice dislodged the plates, serious leakage would have developed.

The vessel has now been repaired and will sail on Saturday.

JACKSON TRIAL RESUMED.

Madam Dis de Bar Groves Theatrical Once More.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The trial of Theodore and Laura Jackson (Madam Dis de Bar) was resumed in the Old Bailey Court today.

Theodore, looking very tired, shrewdly cross-examined Daisy Adams, the sixteen-year-old girl who was on the stand yesterday, but he was unable to shake her evidence.

The cross-examination by Swami (Madam Dis de Bar) was more dramatic. "When the prosecuting counsel proceeded to make an explanation," Swami hissed, "you called him a swami. I am a swami. You take your place."

The judge repeatedly told Swami to be quiet. Her questions were irrelevant and she finally finished abruptly.

FOR MALLYO'S RELEASE.

Steps to Free American Boer Taken by Fitzgerald.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—The first steps to secure the release of James Mallyo, now held by the British Government as a Boer prisoner of war, were taken by ex-Congressman Fitzgerald, who has written to Secretary Hay. He also wrote to Lord Pauncefote, the British Ambassador to Washington, as well as to all the members of Congress from Massachusetts.

It is reported that Mallyo is inhuman treatment at the hands of the British Government officers in South Africa.

CHINESE COURT'S RETURN.

Bad Weather Retards the Progress of the Royal Party.

PEKING, Dec. 19.—The Court is being delayed by bad weather on its return journey to Peking, but good progress is nevertheless being made.

A story has been current here lately that the Chinese intended to pay $500,000 tael interest on the indemnity for the Boxer rebellion to the United States.

Mr. Robert Hart, Director of the Imperial Maritime Customs, says the Chinese do not possess the means at present to make such a payment, but that $380,000 tael has been ordered to be sent to Shanghai by the provinces to pay the January interest.

FUNERAL OF NATIVE MARTYRS.

Seventy Chinese to Be Buried While Officials Kowtow.

PEKING, Dec. 20.—There will be a public funeral today of seventy native Christian martyrs at Tungchow, under the direction of the American Board of Foreign Missions.

The officials of Tungchow and all the surrounding villages will kowtow in acknowledgment of the victims' martyrdom, when the Boxer crimes against the mission will be considered forgiven, and former relations between the natives and missionaries will be re-established.

BANK TELLER GIVES BAIL.

Ballston Spa Institution Reopens After an Investigation.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Dec. 19.—Charles E. Fitcham, the teller who is charged with misappropriating upward of $115,000 of the funds of the First National Bank of Ballston Spa, appeared this afternoon through his counsel, Gaylord Logan, of Albany, before United States Commissioner Charles E. Davidson, of this place, and furnished bail in $20,000.

The stories which qualified include George A. Hubbard and Henry Wollard, of Albany, and Allen Lindsay, of Troy. Fitcham is said to be seriously ill. The bank resumed business today, after being closed three weeks pending an investigation of the teller's defalcation.

TO REGULATE TRUSTS.

Constitutional Amendment Offered by Representative Jenkins.

Representative Jenkins, of Wisconsin, of the Committee on Judiciary, introduced a bill yesterday proposing a constitutional amendment authorizing Congress to regulate corporations and combinations in restraint of commerce and trade.

This is to be urged upon the consideration of Congress in the event that the Littlefield bills to regulate trusts should fail on constitutional grounds.

McDeMott (Dem., N. J.) introduced a bill along similar lines.

Beaten Over Chew of Tobacco.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 19.—Philip Kaufman was called and fatally injured at Crozet today by a negro, who asked him for a chew of tobacco. The negro charged.
